The editorial staff extends its sincerest appreciation to Mr. Hurd for the interest and kindness he has shown in helping with this issue of the M.E.S. magazine.

Editorial

"Do it now!" The goal toward which we are working is the thing for which we are living. Need we give up and admit defeat? Nothing of value can be obtained without effort. There are many trivial interests which look important at close range and fade into insignificance when compared to the real aim. When such minor interests tempt, steel yourself to work first on the details which build up to your goal. Establish your duty and "Do it now!"

When it is all over, when you have succeeded in finishing your work in some manner, you are glad that you answered your conscience and replied favourably to "Do it now!" Could you, in face of failure, look back and say, "I have done my best", when you have let the big thing go for the less important item? Would not your conscience prick uncomfortably and remind you that you disregarded its urgent plea? Instead, think always of the end and finish the details in order, "Do it now!" ----- then face the world and smile.

SENIORS

I am very happy to have this opportunity to say "Greetings!" to all of you, and to wish for the senior students who are leaving us in May the very best of all things in life! May you think often of the two years spent at The Margaret Eaton School. With all the events which will fill the years ahead for you, and all the joys and sorrows which will come to you, may you still remember with pleasure the work and play that we have had together in the old building at 415 Yonge Street. Even the creaky stairs, the blackboards and piano stools that fell apart, the kaleidoscopic locker room, were all a part of the atmosphere.

May you have many chances to demonstrate your loyalty to physical education. Who can tell how many of you may become not only teachers, but efficient public speakers, in defense of the programme for girls in which you believe so strongly? May you give to the girls with whom you come in contact the same fine qualities with which you are so well endowed, - femininity and charm and withal a zest for action and a vital personality which is the reflection of a love for activity.

Some of us remain behind to carry on with each new group of students who come to us. But you are never supplanted by them in our thoughts or affections, your "individual differences" will always be a fond memory as we watch your progress and take pride in your accomplishments.
